Investment Products and Diversification

A consumer (or class of consumer) may intend to hold a product as part of a diversified portfolio (typically with an intended product use of satellite/small allocation or core component). In such circumstances, the product should be assessed against the consumer's attributes for the relevant portion of the portfolio, rather than the consumer's portfolio as a whole. For example, a consumer may seek to construct a conservative portfolio with a satellite/small allocation to growth assets. In this case, it may be likely that a product with a High or Very High risk/return profile is consistent with the consumer's objectives for that allocation notwithstanding that the risk/return profile of the consumer as a whole is Low or Medium. In making this assessment, distributors should consider all features of a product (including its key attributes).

Review and Distribution
Significant Dealing	Dealings outside this TMD may be significant because:
	(a) It is inconsistent with the distribution strategy of this product, and/or(b) It may result in transactions that cause actual or potential harm to consumers (or a class of consumer).
	In each case, the distributor should have regard to:
	 (a) the benefits and risks disclosed by each investment product, (b) the actual or potential harm to a consumer in an investment that is made outside the TMD, and (c) an assessment of consumer investment across their portfolio, as determined by the number of green, yellow and red ratings.
	Objectively, a distributor may consider a dealing (or group of dealings) outside the TMD to be significant if, when arranging investment products in the Service on behalf of a consumer, that there are more red ratings within the portfolio as compared with yellow and green ratings.
